official confirmation

Dear Mr. Wakeley,

we confirm with this letter officially that our steel hatch boxes are tested by MPU Stuttgart against fire. All fire resistance tests have been successfully finished. The fire rating in minutes can be taken from the current order confirmation.

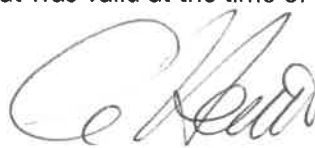

The legal basis for test certificates has changed in Germany during 2020. This means that German test certificates cannot be renewed or reissued cause the technical building regulations have replaced the list of building rules. The German test authorities are not in able and not authorised at the moment to renew test certificates about fire resistance.

We manufacture our steel hatch boxes with fire resistance without any changes in accordance with the test certificate that was valid at the time of the test.

With best regards

Michael Marien
